A universal initiative for peace!

Roberto Fabian an independent singer, songwriter and producer from Sydney collaborated with two exceptional session vocalists, to perform and produce multiple versions of his latest song 'All We Want'. This latest EP includes these initial versions sung in English, Italian and French, with a mix of male and female lead and backing vocals on top of a single gentle finger plucked acoustic guitar track performed by Roberto.

Roberto inspired by the international response to the terrorist events in recent times and in particular, the Paris 2015 attacks, wants to send a simple message with this contemporary song, i.e., "We all share a right for 'peace and love' in living our daily lives, in all our communities, irrespective language, gender or culture! We just need the courage to declare and believe in it". Said Roberto.

Roberto posted the main lyric from his song on Facebook (see the screen shot to the right) recently and was overwhelmed by the international response i.e., over 13.7K likes in just a few weeks of sharing. "I was totally un-prepared replying to over 1.2K comments, while mostly positive; others were questioning the reality and worth of my beliefs. All of the sudden I had to come up with the right supportive words sometimes translating them into other languages. It was truly a thought provoking and self-challenging experience. Check out the post and you will see what I mean!" Said Roberto.

Roberto hopes to collaborate further with other talented session singers/musicians to produce further versions of his song in all languages to "provide a universal chorus to validate and enforce global sentiment of wanting peace and love in all our communities" says Roberto.
